

Stitching the Dark: New and Selected Poems

By Carole Satyamurti

Bloodaxe Books Ltd. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Stitching the Dark: New and Selected Poems, Carole Satyamurti, Carole Satyamurti's poetry explores love, attachment and the fragility of personal survival, charting the tension between connected and separate lives. With an unflinching eye, she takes on complex and often painful subject-matter - cancer for instance or raising a disabled child. Many of her poems hinge on a turning-point or a place where one life touches another, bearing witness to the way we imagine - or fail to imagine - the otherness of others. Stitching the Dark draws on four previous books and includes a whole new collection, her strongest and most formally adventurous. In these new poems, there is a deeper engagement with the universal predicament of how to live in the face of mortality - of what it means to exist, and to cease existing. The title suggests that the act of writing - the search for the right words - is an attempt to repair, illuminate, and give form to what is unknown, fearful, perplexing. But the collection is by no means solemn. There is also wit and celebration, dark humour and a fine sense of the absurd, as...

Frederick Seidel Selected Poems is filled with status details, bleak aphorisms and grief filtering through it all. His poems are life force and death wish. He's the only living poet who could creditably be played by Nicolas Cage in a biopic. "We can't all be proletarians, you know," the critic Dwight Macdonald once thundered, in a letter. To focus on the status details in Seidel's poems is to miss the way grief filters through them. There's a lot of longing, in his later work, for a vanishing New York. With Seidel it's always an angular, witty longing. In "Remembering Elaine," he writes: We smoked Kools, unfiltered Camels, and papier ma's Gitanes, The fat ones Belmondo smoked in Breathless "and so did Don, Elaine's original red-haired cokehead mother who had a beautiful wife, dangerously. New Selected Poems. 1966-1987. For Marie and Michael and. Poem. Personal Helicon. from Door into the Dark (1969). Thatcher. The Peninsula. He shaved and flushed the butts, stitched all together. Into a sloped honeycomb, a stubble patch, And left them gaping at his Midas touch. Dark Poems about Life. Sadness and darkness are natural cousins. Since ancient times, people have worn black to express their grief. There is a certain romance in darkness and melancholy. There is something mysterious about that which is hidden and unknown. Dark poems may seek to romanticize sadness and depression. Other dark poems are simply poems about sad subjects. The poem "The Raven" by Edgar Allan Poe is an example of a delightfully spooky dark poem. There is much room for creativity in this genre. Poems for When the World Seems Dark and Lonely. 1 - 10 of 27. < 1. Countdown (Bloodaxe, 2011) is her first new collection since Stitching the Dark: New & Selected Poems (Bloodaxe, 2005). War Photographer. -the poem explores the violence of war and the loss of innocence it creates. -Satyamurti, though the photographer demonstrates that in some ways we take pleasure from the plight of others. -The poem also suggests the dilemma a photographer faces: they must capture misery rather than aid it. -The poem also helps to highlight the haves and have nots; those who are safe and those who are constantly under the threat of violence. New Selected Poems 1966-1987 is a poetry collection by Seamus Heaney, who received the 1995 Nobel Prize in Literature. It was published in 1990 (see 1990 in poetry) by Faber and Faber. It includes selections from each of Heaney's seven first volumes of verse: Death of a Naturalist (1966). Door into the Dark (1969). Wintering Out (1972). North (1975). Field Work (1979). Station Island (1984). The Haw Lantern (1987).
