ACT I Scene I Scene: The present Place: A park in the South somewhere, early spring TED, a man in his 20s, maybe early 30s, is sitting on a bench. He is anything but suave; he is, in fact, a geek and probably dresses so. He is obviously waiting for someone, someone who is late. He fidgets, looks about etc. Finally, NINA enters. She is about the same age as him, high-energy and purposeful with a light Southern accent. She looks like a vision from the 40s or 50s, dressed in a pink skirt with a white sweater and handbag. Did she just come from church?Â TED (He laughs, again a little uncertain.) What a charming thought. Shall we sit?Â After I read a few books. (They are silent for a moment) So youâ€™re like a big-time Christian, then? NINA Big time. A real Bible-thumpinâ€™ Jesus freak.
