Erich's strategy was to spot the enemy first and surprise them, waiting to fire until very close, which typically resulted in catastrophic damage to the enemy plane. He scored 352 kills, of which 345 were Soviet aircraft. Enough said! The Blond Knight of Germany: A biography of Erich Hartmann. Edited August 4, 2013 by Lupin500. Link to post. I love the part where he's running through the field of sunflowers and the bullets are wizzing by him. Link to post. Share on other sites. The evolution of Erich Hartmann as a fighter pilot told from his own words, is wonderfully presented in this biography, followed by numerous successful accounts of his victories. What I also particularly enjoyed was the camaraderie of the JG-52 and their chivalrous treatment of their Soviet captives, which only demonstrates that one can remain human even in the most hellish situations. Superbly arranged; the story of Erich Hartmann is an example of the type of Luftwaffe pilots who served on the Eastern Front; who through skill and bravery excelled at their role as a fighter pilot against daunting and ever increasing odds.
